Announcement.

I feel so friendly to all that I have no wish to steal from any. My great desire is: That my Drugs shall restore health to your bodies. My Books, Magazines and Papers enrich your minds and make pure your hearts. My Wall Paper, Pictures, Frames, Vases, Statuary, &c., adorn your homes within. My Paints and Oils make them beautiful and enduring without. That no teeth shall ache through eating my Candies. That no boys shall learn to smoke because I sell good Cigars. No little fingers shall bleed because I keep keen Cutlery. That my Gold Rings may rob the finger of scorn of its venom, and the stiff-necked and rebellious become otherwise, as they are adorned with my Jewelry. That the Pocket Books I sell shall always be full. That my Gold Pens write only the loveliest of letters. That the Spectacles and Eye Glasses I sell may enable you all to see so correctly the blessings that surround you, that the underbrush of trouble shall be choked out. And that when I come to balance up for the year, I may find that if there should be a rainy day, I have got a little laid up for it.

FRANK SMITH,

The most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Also excellent for human flesh. READ PROOF BELOW.

From a Prominent Physician.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents: Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse, and both horses are to-day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars. Respectfully yours,

H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE ON HUMAN FLESH.

Bakersfield, Vt., Dec. 28, 1879.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents: I wish to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable liniment, "Kendall's Spavin Cure." In the spring of 1862 I slipped on the ice and sprained my right limb at the knee joint. I was very lame and at times suffered the most excruciating pain. I wore a bandage on it for over a year, and tried most everything in my reach, but could find nothing that would give me permanent relief. When I overworked, it would pain me very much. In April, 1878, I began to think I should be a cripple for life: but having some of "Kendall's Spavin Cure" thought I would try it. I used one-third of a bottle and experienced relief at once. The pain left me and has not troubled me since. I feel very grateful to you and would recommend "Kendall's Spavin Cure" to all who suffer with sprains or rheumatism. Yours truly, MRS. J. BOUTELL.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, and yet it is penetrating, and powerful to reach every deep seated pain, or to remove any bony growth or any other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ailous, sprains, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success, to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $.100 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburg Falls, Vermont.

NOW GET MARRIED.

We will send a copy of the COMMERCIAL, free, to every new bride in the city of Ypsilanti, Ypsilanti town, Augusta, York, Milan, Pittsfield, Saline, Superior, Salem, Sumpter, and Van Buren, until March 1st, '81, who will promptly send us a notice of her marriage, and her address.

Personals are solicited. All persons going on a visit or having friends visiting them from abroad are requested to notify us by mail or otherwise.

Commercial Office, in new block, opposite Post Office, corner Huron and Pearl streets.

"The nation must be spelled with a big N; the rag baby is buried, and a campaign of personal slander has been condemned." JAMES A. GARFIELD.

The battle has been fought and won. It has been one of the hottest contested since that of 1844, when Clay was defeated by the loss of New York, and 5,000 votes would turned the scales. It has been won by an unparralelled display of courage and effort. No political conflict ever brought out more oratorical talant and a greater degree of political eloquence. The pivotal states Indiana and New York have been vast camping grounds. The beleagured hosts faced each other with a determination to wrest from each other the sceptre of victory, if money and argument and logic and persuasion could do it. Growing desperate after the election in Indiana, slander and forgery became the rude weapon of the Democracy. Their leaders went down carrying on their banners the most brazen falsehoods. Buried beneath the rubbish of columny and perjury they ought not to ever appear above ground again. The solid south ought never to appear as a facto in our politics again, and will not if the ends of justice are met.

Garfield and Arthur get 219 electorial votes:—

California 5000, Colorado 3,000, Connecticut 2,000, Illinois 22,000, Indiana 8,000, Iowa 85,000, Kansas 60,000, Maine 4,000, Massachusetts 50,000, Michigan 52,000, Minnesota 30,000, Nebraska 25,000, New Hampshire 2,000, New York 25,000, Ohio 35,000, Oregon 1,500, Pennsylvania 50,000, Rhode Island 4,000, Vermont 30,000, Wisconsin 20,000.

Washtenaw is a green spot for Democracy—about 500 majority.

CONGRESS REDEEMED.—A majority of eight or nine in the House and the Senate a tie. Arthur will have the casting vote. Michigan sends a solid delegation.

Michigan Legislature stands: Senate; Republicans, 30, Democrats 2. House; Republicans, 85, Democrats, 15.

In regard to Capt. Allen's defeat we are not in a proper frame of mind to discuss the matter. If we don't get a little more composed on the subject by the next issue the splinters will fly.

There was a grand audience at Light Guard Hall Monday evening and Capt. Allen made a grand speech hewing close to the line on temperance and other issues. He received an ovation of which any man might well be proud.

Light Guard Hall was well filled Tuesday night to hear the returns. In the early part of the evening the Democrats did a little cheering, but mid-night found them mostly at home and the Republicans masters of the field. When news came from N. Y. the applause was deafening. There was no speaking, no music; much loud talk about betting, but little money changed hands. The Republicans left the hall between one and two o'clock, satisfied that a glorious victory had been won.

ANOTHER PIONEER GRAVE.

Mrs. Sophy Wilson, wife of William Wilson of this city, died on the 30th of Oct. 1880, from the effects of a stroke of Paralysis. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have long been known as early settlers of this vicinity. She was 77 years of age and was born in Essex county England, June 7th 1803, and came with her husband to Ypsilanti, (then called Woodruff's Grove), in Oct. 1825. On their arrival here they located 190 acres of land about three miles south of this city, and now owned by Mr. J. E. Smith. This land, by their industry and economy was transformed from a wilderness to a fine farm cultivated better than many gardens. Having acquired a competence for old age they moved to this city about fourteen years ago and have since resided here. Mrs. Wilson was well known as one of the most exemplary and kind hearted women in this vicinity. She was highly respected and beloved by all her acquaintances Some of the children of our pioneers attended her funeral on the 3d inst, who remembered her many kind favors bestowed upon them from their infancy to her last sickness. She rests from her labors, and has found a home in paradise. COM.

PERSONALS.

Hon. S. M. Cutcheon spent last Sabbath in the city.

Dr. Saxton was in town Monday. His postoffice address is Hudson, Mich.

Mrs. A. O. Temple of Hersey, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Earl.

Hon. Chas. S. May enthused the Democracy at the opera house Monday evening.

Ed. Thompson returned Thursday evening from a six week's western trip. He had a good time and "lots of fun."

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Macentyre, from Dayton, Ohio, are here to attend the funeral of their mother Mrs. Van Tyle.

Mrs. Archie Woodford with her little one returned home to Chicago, Thursday.

Miss Addie Crumb of Saline, is visiting her brother Charlie Crumb, that was lately married.

D. W. Thompson who has been spending some time with a sick brother at Moscow, returned home to vote. Lost his vote.

Mrs. Anna Vancleve left Thursday to visit friends in St. Louis, after which she proposes to go to New York and reside there for sometime to come.

Rev. J. H. Scott has improved in health so as to be able to return home and deposited his ballot in the direction that all good Baptist ministers do.

Mr. Allen Crittenden and wife returned last Saturday from a pleasant visit in the state of New York, of three weeks duration.

Rev. C. H. Cochrane, who has been foreman of this office for eight months past has accepted a pastoral call from the Baptist church in York. He possesses a superior education. We wish him success in his new field of labor.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Schaffer returned home from their wedding tour to Rochester Niagara Falls Saturday Oct. 30th, and are stopping at the residence of the brides father Mr. Wm. Hall, No. 13 Oak street. Thanks for nice cake.

Hon. Edwin F. Uhl and wife visited their friends in the city Monday. Mr. Uhl made a capital speech for his side at the opera house in the evening. Mr. Uhl remained until Wednesday.

Mr. H. B. Norton of Hiram, Ohio, who is to address the reform club to-morrow, is a new comer to our city. He is at present, employed as photographer by Mrs. Parsons. He is a personal acquaintance of President Garfield.

J. Everett Smith has returned from a trip of four weeks in Colorado and New Mexico. He sold 150 blooded sheep. Mr. Smith's son Arthur is in the sheep business in Oldham county, Texas, having purchased 1500. During his absence he saw Sam. Camfield, who is running a hotel at Trinidad, Colorado, and doing well. Jake Larzaleer resides at the same point. Just returned from a surveying tour rugged and hearty. At Newton Kansas, he met Wright and Dan Spencer. Both doing a good business buying wheat.

Good Templar's Social to-night. Come.

Ypsilanti town gives Garfield a majority of fifty-eight, the city, eighteen.

Band of Hope Wednesday afternoon. Send the children. "Just as the tree is bent the tree is inclined."

Hon. Chancy Joslin addressed the democracy of Ann Arbor last Monday evening.

The missing man, whom we mentioned last week as having been found hung, has been identified as Herman Summers of Detroit.

Whitman is elected by 33 votes. Emerick's majority in Ann Arbor city, 510 or 400 ahead of the ticket.

Mr. H. B. Norton, of Hiram, Ohio, an interesting speaker will address our people on temperance next Sunday afternoon at Light Guard Hall. Let every one come, and now work for the cause.

Prof. Bellows has been revising his algebra, for general use in the public schools and has it nearly ready for the press. The work has been highly spoken of by educational men.

Letters in P. O., Nov. 4th:

Mrs. A. H. Hughes, Edward Martin,
Edward Nilson.

NORMAL ITEMS.

Mr. Bird and Mr. Chapin went home to help elect Mr. Lord.

Mr. Walter Hewitt is appointed committee on Literary exercises.

Will all who see this send the address of any Normal graduate who is yet in the state to the Normal correspondent of the COMMERCIAL.

The discussion at the Lyceum last Friday night was the best we have had this year. It was conducted by the ladies, the Vice President presiding. Good social.

How in the world is the Normal to get her regular appropriations if Mr. Allen is defeated, as seems to be the case? Just send a "lobby" up to Lansing.

The question for discussion to-night is: "Resolved, That the state should not be taxed for higher education." This is an old question but a good one. Why can't the committee find us some new ones.

A Committee of five was appointed by the Lyceum to investigate and "work up" a lecture course which had been proposed by a Bureau of Lectrers at New York; the course will contain six lectures by the best speakers in the United States. If the people of Ypsilanti appreciate such lectures let them help on the scheme by purchasing tickets when offered for sale. The tickets will cost $1.50 for the six, or thirty-five cents for each.

THANKSGIVING.

The Presidents' Proclamation Fixing the Anniversary on the Twenty-Fifth of November.

ABy the president of the United States of merica.

A PROCLAMATION.

At no period in their history since the United States became a nation has this people had so abundant and so universal reasons for joy and gratitude at the favor of Almighty God or been subject to so profound an obligation to give thanks for His loving kindness and humbly to implore His continued care and protection. Health, wealth and prosperity throughout all our borders; peace, honor and friendship with all the world; firm and faithful adherence by the great body of our population to the principles of liberty and justice which have made our greatness as a nation and to the wise institutions and strong frame of government and the society which will perpetuate it, for all these let the thanks of a happy and united people, as with one voice, ascend in devout homage to the Giver of all good. I therefore recommend that on Thursday, the 25th day of November next, the people meet in their respective places of worship to make the acknowledgement to Almighty God for His bounties and His protection, and to offer to Him prayer for their continuance.

In witness hereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this first day of November, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty, and the Independence of the United States the hundred and fifth. R. B. HAYES.

[SEAL.]

By the President: WM. M. EVARTS, Secretary of State.

EDITORIAL NOTES,

250 lbs. is a clog on the market.

Judge Harriman is 750 ahead,

Garfield is used to big majorities, the result don't surprise him at all.

Everett B. Clark wades in by 446 majority.

Decrease of the National debt for October, $7,103,754.68.

"Consistency thou art a jewel!" The pure Prohibitionists voting for King, the liquor dealer's candidate, on principle!

Southern sectional hate is down, with a a man on top, who has no hate in his soul, but a sincere desire for the supremacy of the greatest good to the whole nation.

There are two parties that will keep the Democratic party from ever getting into power in this country. The Lord and the American people.

This election says in thundering tones to the South you must not and shall not bulldose any more—no more shot-gun policy—there shall be a free ballot and a fair count.

This election is an admonisher to the solid South to set its house in order, for the North don't propose to allow any more fooling with the freeman's ballot.

That forged letter, the last resort of desperate men, proved a bad loosing game for the Democratic party—it was not even a good enough Morgan until after election.

If the Free Press editors only could have heard the curses heaped upon its devoted head last Wednesday morning by Democrats, they would have turned pale and shook in their boots.

Democratic readers of the Free Press the day previous to election must have been disgusted. Its base publication of a letter it knew to be a forgery; its brazen announcement of Democratic victories all along the line, last Monday morning, thus deceiving its readers, when it had good reason to know that defeat was staring it in the face. Such utter disregard of truth and decency must disgust the respectable Democrat.

Now after election we ask in all conscience our democratic friends, is a party that will employ such dishonest and criminal means to influence voters as the forged Morey letter worthy your support? Would you want such men to transact your business, who will before election add forgery to lies in order to accomplish their object? You see that this deep descent into iniquity only served to disgust conscientuous independent voters and hang the perpetrators on the gallows prepared for Gen. Garfield.

The following anecdote illustrates the condition of the Democratic party after the victories in Ohio and Indiana and now a still greater national overthrow—a doctor made a prescription for a patient of a pound of salts. Enquiring afterwards as to effects, the reply was "it worked like a charm, powerfully operating twice before he died and once afterwards." It is hoped that the last operation is so effectual as to bury the corpse out of sight for ever.

Do you remember the singularly sudden death of President Harrison, and how soon thereafter his successor "Tylerized?" Have you forgotten how soon after the death of Taylor Fillmore apostatized to the south? Have you forgotten that Franklin Pierce was brought forward as the candidate of the free soil Democracy of the north, and how soon after his election he was the pliant tool of this same south? Do you remember the mysterious "National hotel poisoning" and its marvellous effect upon poor unnerved President Buchanan? Do you forget the assassination of President Lincoln, and the equally strange change of mind that came over his successor?

CONGRESSMAN HUBBELL.

If Hancock had been elected and undertaken to have resisted the demands of the solid south he would have been got out of the way somehow.

The New York Herald of Saturday says of Gen. Grant's services during the campaign:

With his speech at Buffalo on Thursday evening, when he presided over a great political meeting, Gen. Grant's singular activity in this campaign is understood to end. It is impossible to doubt that he has been of great service to the Garfield side. Since his appearance at Warren, Ohio, in Mr. Garfield's district, the whole face of the canvass has changed. From that day forth the Republican prospect continued to brighten. The zeal, vigor and industry which Gen. Grant has exerted in the New York canvass are without example in the life of any preceding ex president. The deep repect felt for his character and his peerless military services tented to neutralize the reputation of Gen. Hancock as a soldier in the civil war, and has, perhaps, done as much as any one cause to keep the Republican voters steady. The only thing which could have eclipsed Gen. Hancook's bright military record was the introduction of a more effulgent military reputation than his own to cast its splendor on the other side. The effect has unquestionably been great.

NOW FOR THE DEVIL OF INIQUITY.

Work for Ministers.

The season of the year has arrived when it is expected that the ministers of the gospel will, with renewed vigor and robust energy, tackle the "world, the flesh and the devil," and rout at least some of their strong holds. In Ypsilanti and vicinity there is practical work to be done. Abstruse sermons, doctrinal points and moralistic homilies are not the weapons needed in such a contest. Christian men ought to be well grounded in these if they read their bibles. What is needed is a direct attack—a specification of the things that work to prejudice of public and private morals. Suppose the clergy of Ypsilanti were to set about this in downright earnest, using such plain speech as John Knox employed against the powers of evil in his day, or Martin Luther, Wesley and Whitefield, Finney, Jacob Knapp, and others, would there not be a shaking of the "dry bones"? The churches would be filled with eager listeners. The cry would be heard up and down our streets. "Men and brethren, what must I do to be saved?" The forces of iniquity would be scattered and overthrown. The temperance reform would make permanent advancement. What say you pastors of our churches? Lay aside your sentimental sermons, your pretty essays, your lectures, and give the devil and his victims in Ypsilanti a tremendous shaking up.

THE LESSONS OF THE CAMPAIGN.

For the COMMERCIAL.

The liquor interest threw down the guantlett demanding the repeal of all that is wholesome in our present restraining laws against free whisky, and a demand for the election of men to office who would enact laws in their interest. It has been effectually answered. Here in one district by an open and shameless use of money they have defeated one able and popular candidate for Representative in the State Legislature whose influence in that body was always felt, and one of whom every citizen of Ypsilanti felt a just and laudable pride. But thanks to the good sense of the grand old Republican party—the party of freedom, this infamous demand has been effectually answered. Gov. Jerome will receive the warmest congratulations of the people that he, for one, had the stamina to withstand the pressure; while "Farmer Holloway" ate dirt. Both have received their reward. God reigneth.

JUSTICE.

"We pledge gifts, we pledge the revenues of the Nation, we pledge our own prosperity.' For what? "To give to the ignorant of the South education."—Gen. Garfield.

Never was there a nobler utterance since man declared for freedom. And now, fellow citizens, let me say to you that, death to intolerance. It kills the rifle club; it spoils the tissue ballot; it simply means—and that is the significance of the Republican party to-day—that we mean to make the South as free, as prosperous, as intelligent as we are at the North. Is that hate? If it be, God grant that it may forever more abound. Is that sectionalism? If it be, God grant that we may be sectional forever. It is giving not only peace, but it is giving prosperity and freedom to a Nation bound in the chains of prejudice and intolerance. I tell you, Mr. Chairman, there is no such thing as avoiding it. It may not come to-day; it may not be that the American people are yet enough awake; but it is as certain to come as God is to be the God of right. [Loud applause.] We have waited long, the colored man has waited long; but deep down below all this runs the river of human liberty and free thought and that is what the Republican party means shall prevail. And so it has put two self-made men at the head of its ticket. I thank God that they are there. I hope that the North will never vote for a man for President who has not at some time of his life earned his daily bread.—Williams.

EDUCATION MEANS DEATH TO KU-KLUXISM,

The second epoch of our history was announced amidst the thundering cannon on the walls of Sumpter that shook the whole continent. We marshalled armies grander than the armies of Wellington or Napoleon. The earth trembled beneath their tread as when a volcano shakes it. The farmer left his plow, the mechanic his workshop, the lawyer his office, the merchant his counting room, and the minister his study, and imprinted a kiss upon the brow of a wife or mother, and went out from home with our stalwart army, and after four years of war our surviving sons came back, and, thank God, there was no stain of dishonor upon the old flag, the old constitution, and said, "Fathers and mother, we bring this back to be preserved forever as the inheritance of our children's children." [Great applause.] What a grand panorama passed in review at the close of the war. I look out there and see before me 200,000 one-armed, one-limbed men upon crutches. I ask, "who are these?" The answer comes back, "these are the mutillated defenders of my country." I look again and I see a great river of human gore moving sluggishly along, and I ask, "What is this?" The answer is, "It is the life blood of your patriotic sons." I cast my eye again and I see beyond that river a towering pyramid, and at its base are three hundred thousand green hillocks, and I ask, "what are these?" The answer comes, "It is the cemetery of your heroic dead." I look again, at at the top of the summit of that pyramid floats out the old flag, thirty-eight stars, each representing an empire of itself, and I read upon it an inscription in the language of the immortal Webster, "The Union, one and indissoluble, now and forever." [Prolonged applause and cheers.]—Williams of Indiana.

Detroit Letter to New York Tribune.

THE CAMPAIGN IN MICHIGAN.

Too much praise cannot be awarded to Senator Baldwin, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, for the judicious and efficient manner in which he has conducted the present campaign here. There is no nook or corner of the state where the people have not been informed in regard to the important issues of the day, and unanswerable argument presented repeatedly to their attention. The neighboring states of Ohio and Indiana, and other states regarded as less firmly anchored in the Republican faith, have monopolized the noted political speakers of the country, and have been to a greater extent the recipients of aid from the national committee, while Michigan has had to depend upon her own resources almost wholly. She has no complaint to make on this score, for her soil produces Republicans of the stalwart variety and in great profusion.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October, 1880.

MR. EDITOR:—

Ere this letter shall have gone into type the greatest battle of the ages will have been fought through the mighty power of the ballot, falling noiselessly as the snow flake, yet with a power that ends and destroys wrong and outrage, injustice and error, and enthrones virtue, justice and righteousness throughout this God given land. The preliminaries of this great struggle are now over. Both the great political parties are ready for the contest. Mothers, sisters, wives and sweet hearts are praying as they prayed when the news came of a dead one loved one and fallen one whose life went out in defense of country and dear ones. The busy hum of spindles, the noise and bustle of tens of thousands of prosperous industries cease for a time as a fitting emblem of their highest privilege, the casting of a ballot with a freeman's responsibilitity to country and to God. The dark spirits of error were all summoned as of yore, and marshaled into the ranks of the Confederacy. The flood gates of calumny were opened, the boss liar of the Nation was at his best. Forgers, calumniators and the old devil himself all combined to urge the people of this great land to admit they made a mistake in falling down and worshiping the true God during four years of bitter war, instead of paying homage to Jeff. Davis' golden calf, the southern confederacy, represented in latter days by one Hancock, weighing two hundred and fifty pounds or more. But the die is cast, victory is certain. The fate of the confederacy is sealed. Democracy sepulchered by the popular will, must sleep beside the forgers, liars, calumniators, bulldozers and night-riders and over their common sepulcher must be written an epitaph—Died because not fit to live

"in the land of the free,
And the home of the brave."

Preparations for the winter campaign at the Capital are being made on every hand. It is apparant that the city will be overrun with visitors during the next session of Congress, to be followed in March by the inauguration of Hon. James A. Garfield as President for the next four years.

Among the most notable improvements are those made by C. C. Willard, the genial proprietor of the Ebbitt House, so long and favorably known as the home of members of Cabinet, Senators, Representatives and Foreign Ministers, Officers of the army and Navy, as well as the general public throughout the whole country. The exterior of this vast hotel is faultless. Its beauty is a standing invitation to enter and enjoy its home-like comforts. The culinary department is equal to any in the world, while the table is amply supplied with every luxury that can tempt the palate. Its location is unequaled, and can be reached by the street cars from every depot. The large and beautiful parlors, the airy and elegantly furnished rooms, the hops and receptions, and the wealth, culture and beauty that gather at this vast hotel, make it a most inviting place for strangers to stop while visiting the Capital.

Assistant Postmaster General Brady reports that on June 30, 1870, the end of the fiscal year, the postal service embraced 1,118 railroad routs, at an aggregate cost of $10,498,986. The expense for transportation over 9,863 "Star service" routes aggregating 235,248 miles for the entire year was $7,821,449. The rapid settlement of the West has greatly increased the demand for larger postal facilities. Calls are constantly made for the establishment of new postal routes over railroads and public roads.

The subject of building a new Congressional Library must come before the next Congress.

A provision of an act passed April 24, 1800, for removing the U. S. Government from Philadelphia to Washington appropriated $5,000 for the purchase of "such books as may be necessary for the use of Congress at the city of Washington." That was the beginning of the present splendid library. At that time Washington city contained less than 500 inhabitants, and there were not over three public libraries in the United states embracing over 5,000 volumes. In January, 1802, Congress passed an act making $3,800 available for books for the library, and giving the President the authority to appoint a librarian, Until 1815 the clerks of the House of Representatives were the librarians of Congress. Since that time there have been but four librarians, viz; Geo. Waterson, appointed by James Madison, served 14 years; John S. Meeham, appointed by Gen. Jackson, served 32 years; John G. Stephenson, appointed by Mr. Lincoln, served 3 years; the present incumbent, Ainsworth R. Spofford, appointed by Mr. Lincoln in 1864, who has served over 16 years. When the British forces burned the capitol in 1814 they destroyed the library which then contained but 3,000 volumes. In 1814 not a book was left, and that year Congress voted the money to purchase the library of Thomas Jefferson, many opposing because there were more books than would ever be needed. Year by year appropriations were made until 1857, when a fire destroyed 35,000 volumes leaving but 20,000 remaining. The library now contains 375,000 volumes with shelf room for 280,000, leaving 90,000 to be piled in heaps on the floor. Besides there are 120,000 pamphlets, 6,000 bound volumes of news paper files, embracing more than a century of American history, complete sets of the London Times since 1796. of the London Gazette since 1665, and of the Moniteur Universal since 1787, and nearly all the Engiish and American reviews and magazines. Two newspapers from each State, representing both political parties, have been taken for many years and are kept for reference. PARKS.

Blackwood's Magazine for October has been republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay Street, New York. The number is well worth spending an hour or two over, both for its own merits and as a relief from the exciting topics of the election.

The serial "Dr. Wortle's School" is continued; "Bush Life in Queensland" is concluded, and the bad people die and the good ones are married. An interesting article on "Memory" gives various peculiarities of memories, and concludes that what a man wants in memory is not a master-power, but a servant. "The Enchanted Bridle" is founded on an Ayrshire legend of a compact with the devil, and its result.

"The Roof of tht World" describes the plateau in Central Asia 15,000 feet above the sea; it was explored by Lieut. Wood in 1838, and the present interest attached to this region makes the article very acceptable.

Other very good articles are "Lois; a Sketch," of the sort for which Blackwood is famous, and "Society and the Salons before the French Revolution," indicating the indicating the influence of these salons of the eighteenth century on the terrible dramas which were enacted at its close.

The periodicals reprinted by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co. (41 Barclay Street, N. Y.) ars as follows: The London Quarterly, Eyinburg, Westminster, and British Quarterly Reviews, and Blackwood's Magazine. Price, $4 a year for any one, or only $15 for all, and the postage is prepaid by the Publishers.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay St., New York, have promptly issued their reprint of the British Quarterly Review for October. The following is a brief account of the contents.

"Tennyson's Poems." This is not an analysis of Tennyson's works, the object of the paper being to account for and justify his popularity, "and to show the limits of his enduring fame."

"The Lord's Supper Historically Considered." A statement of some general principles which have been derived from historical research showing their application to the great Eucharistic controversies; and a discusssion of the efforts to give intellectual expression to the main problems attaching to this ordinance.

"The Art of Singing, Past and Present." The writer, Vernon Lee, gives a history of the rise and fall of this art, which he looks upon as almost lost, though he thinks it might be revived, should it become the subject of more intelligent interest.

"Sir James Outram," a recital of some of the chief incidents of his career, such as taming the Bheels and Kolees; the first wars in Afghanistan, etc., etc.

"Exploration and Mission Work in Africa." An examination of the rise, progress and present condition of the great movement towards civilizing Afriac.

"The Practice of an Architect," an answer by T. Roger Smith to an article that appeared in a former number of this Review, entitled "The Profession of an Architect." It challenges the truth of almost every assertion to the detriment of the profession made in that article.

"Contemporary Literature," ful, as usual, of brief notices of recent publications.

The periodicals reprinted by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co. (41 Barclay Street, N. Y.) are as follows: The London Quarterly, Edinburgh, Westminster, and British Quarterly Reviews, and Blackwood's Magazine. Price, $4 a year for any one, or only $15 for all, and the postage is prepaid by the Publishers.

Happy Songs is the taking title of a 40 page manilla bound Music Book for day schools, just published by Thomas Kane & Co., 248 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill Both words and music are bright, ringing, cheerful, but not trashy. It is destined to a large sale, as it fills a void in musical literature, viz: a cheap, popular and good music book for teachers who can sing, but who either cannot or do not care to teach music. The publishers will mail a specimen copy to any address on receipt of 10 cents.

Spavin, Ring-Bone, Etc., with Methods of Treatment.

The horse is our noblest domestic animal, perfect in structure, imposing in appearance, full of intelligence and when kindly treated giving in return an affection almost human in its nature, and performing to the last point of endurance the tasks imposed, and we may add is too often subjected to the hardest and harshest usuage of any of our animals, and probably for this reason is the most liable to disease and blemishes.

Many an otherwise valuable horse is disfigured for life and rendered more or less unfit for service by ugly spavins, unsightly ringbones, splints etc. Sometimes these difficulities are not of a serious nature, that is, do not lame the horse, or make any material difference in the ability for performing work on the farm but such animals are rendered unsaleable, or if disposed of, it must be at a sacrifice of price. Generally, however, the horse is permanently lamed, unless the cause is removed, which is very seldom—and often entirely ruined for travel or work.

Spavins are most generally produced by a strain or overwork in drawing. The boney increscence or substance of which it is composed will grow quite fast and sometimes give the appearance of an enlarged joint, and unless attended to in season will soon become difficult to manage. Many remidies have been devised for this difficulty, but usually with very indifferent success. Blistering is generally resorted to when anything is attempted, and will in some cases, when properly performed stop the growth of the spavin but will not remove the bunch already formed or cure the lameness, besides the process is a painful one producing soreness and rendering the horse more or less unfi for service.

Some four years ago Dr. J. B. Kendell of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., having a horse troubled with spavin tried blistering to cure it. The operation appeared so painful and unsatisfactory that it was abandoned with the belief that a remedy less torturing in its application and more certain in its effects might be devised. Accordingly the Doctor set himself to work, and being a practical physician and druggist, succeeded in preparing a remedy that since its introduction to public notice, has achieved a success that is of the most satisfactory character. About three years since, hearing of several cases where "Kendall's Spavin Cure," as the remedy is termed, had been used with good effect, I took some pains to ascertain the facts in the case, and reported the same for several of our leading agricultural journals. I give a few instances to which I am personally knowing. Mr. R. A. Gaines, of Berkshire, Vt., owned a valuable horse having a spavin of the size of half a hen's egg, and producing severe lameness. After trying the usual remedies with no effect, learning of "Kendall's Spavin Cure," a bottle was obtained and used according to directions. The application produced no blistering, did not appear to be painful, and left no scar or callous. A one dollor bottle was used and it cured the spavin, stopping the lameness and removing the bunch. I examined the legs carefully and could find no difference in the size of the joints, and could not tell upon which the spavin was located. The horse has been worked hard since and upon examining him the second time a while since, after an interval of three or four years, was pleased to find no return of the difficulty in any shape or manner; one leg is as sound and perfect to all appearance as the other.

Mr. N. F. Weld, also of Berkshire, Vt., treated a bad case of spavin with this remedy and in six weeks the lameness was gone, the bunch nearly removed and he considered the horse cured. There has been no return of the difficulty since, although the horse has been worked hard. A. A. Simpkins of West Enosburgh, Vt., has had an experience similar to the above, and others might be given, but these may be considered sufficient to establish the fact of the curative powers of this remedy, and also, which is equally important, the permanence of the cure; the relief afforded being not temporary, but lasting in effect. Equal success has been had with "Kendall's Spavin Cure" in the treatment of splints, curb, ringbone, bruises, strains of different kinds, callous, etc. I wish to call particular attention to this as a humane method of treatment, the remedy, while it is efficient in operation yet does not produce pain or soreness, as is the case with most applications. This feature is deserving of notice and is receiving commendation from many prominent gentlemen in this country, among whom I would mention Mr. Charles A. Currier, special agent for the Massachusetts society for the prevention of cruelty to animals. Boston, Massachusetts, and others.

Although this remedy was originally designed for the treatment of horses, yet it has been used for human ailments, such as different forms of rheumatism, or deep seated pains of long standing, with equally good effect.

"Kendall's Spavin Cure" has been introduced throughout the most of this country, and is being put into the hands of all the leading wholesale druggists from whom it may be obtained, or through whom it may be ordered by every druggist. Dr. Kendall has also compiled a small work or "Treatise on the Horse and its Diseases," of about 160 pages, fully illustrated, and giving in a small compass a large amount of useful information, free from all technical terms and which will be worth many times its cost, of twenty-five cents, to all owners of horses. Something of the favor with which this work is being received by the public may be inferred from the fact that one hundred thousand copies or over have been sold since April last. Should any one desire further information upon any matter contained in this article, they will please address Dr. B J. Kendall, at Enosburgh, Falls, Vt. E. R. TOWLE.

We are informed that the "Kendall's Spavin Cure" is now sold by all the leading wholesale druggists and a large number of prominent retail druggist.—From "FARM & FIRESIDE." 868-1w

The Modern Mazeppa.

The Rev. Mr. McPherson had been for nearly a year the rector of the church in Ishkatawunky, Iowa, and together with his young and attractive wife had won the warm admiration of all but the unmaried ladies of his parish, when he became interested in bicycles. Being young and athletic, he soon became an excellent rider, and every afternoon after four he was accustomed to mount his bicycle in the back yard, to ride swiftly down the carriage path to the street, and thence through the village. As his house was an isolated one, and no curious neighbors were near, Mrs. McPherson undertook to learn to ride and in a short time was able to mount with ease and to ride the length of the yard, where her husband would meet her and hold the machine while she dismounted. She greatly enjoyed her sport, and it may possibly have been in order to remove the temptation of her venturing to ride outside of the yard that her husband avoided teaching her to dismount without his help.

A fortnight ago Mr. McPherson bought one of the new Chicago spring-moter velocipedes, without informing his wife of the nature of his purchase. This is driven by the expansive force of a strong steel spring which is warranted to keep the bicycle in motion for an hour. It was delivered at his house while he was at the Diocesan Convention, and his wife was filled with admiration of its beauty. She was entirely ignorant that it was in any respect different from other machines, and late in the afternoon she determined to try it. Her husband not being at hand to help her dismount, she called the cook and gave her full instructions as to how to catch the machine and hold it. Then taking the new bicycle to the extreme rear of the yard, Mrs. McPherson sprang into the saddle and was off at a speed of fifteen miles an hour.

It need hardly be said that she was terribly frightened. Scarcely less frightened was the cook as she saw her mistress sweeping down upon her at so terrific a speed. Instead of trying to stop the machine she screamed wildly and ran out of its path. The gate was open, and Mrs. McPherson whirled into the street. She would have given worlds to stop the runaway bicycle, but she did not know the secret of the lever, and she did not dare to risk her life by jumping off. In a few minutes she found herself entering the long principal street of Ishkattawhunky, and saw the inhabitants were flocking to the sidewalk to watch her. She was crimson with horror as she reflected that the machine was strictly designed for riders with the trousers, and for a minute she almost made up her mind to throw herself to the ground regardless of consequences. Fortunately she reflected that the results of a fall would be even more startling and extensive than those entailed by keeping her seat, and so, trying her best to comfort herself with the reflection that they were real Balbriggan, and unusally tasteful in color and patern, she rode on. She would gladly have changed places with Mazeppa, who rode through a desert instead of a crowded street, and she envied Lady Godiva, who induced the people of Coventry to close their window blinds. The sensation she made as she rushed through the village, and out again upon the prarie, cannot be described, but she knew perfectly well that no possible story that she could possibly devise would be accepted in explanation of the frightful impropriety of which she had been guilty.

The runaway bicycle came to a stop ten miles out of Ishkattawhunky, and close to a railroad station. Mrs. McPherson immediately took the train for Milwaukee, where her parents resided, and then telegraphed to her husband. Of coure she never returned to Ishkattawhuky, and Mr. McPherson was requested to resign his parish on the ground that the conduct of his wife was to the last degree scandalous. He has since given up bicycleing, but he is under a cloud, and his hopes of usefulness in the Church are ruined.—N. Y. Times.

A NORTH CAROLINA MARRIRGE.

Soon after the close of the last war Captain X was appointed a justice of the peace in a country place not far from Raleigh, North Carolina.

His father had been a planter in a rather small way, and his son the captain had acquired considerable experience in the business of managing real estate, drawing up deeds, etc., during the father's lifetime, and then in settling the estate after his decease. Further than this he had no legal knowledge, and, indeed, his entire stock of "book-learning" was small and poorly selected, but any lack in general information was fully made up, for his uses, by self-assertion. Late one afternoon, as he was riding home from Raleigh, he met a young woman and two men, who hailed him and inquired if he was Captain X. The young woman and one of the men wished to be married at once. The other had come as a witness. They had procured the necessary license, but an irate father was on their path, and swore that they should never be married. It was considered on all accounts safest to have the ceremony performed without delay, and try pacification afterward.

Now the captain had never witnessed a marriage, and naturally had no very clear idea of what was usual in such cases. He remembered having seen a book about the house years before with a form for marriage in it, but what the book was and where it was he could not remember.

"Why," said he, when he told the story afterward, "I knew the 'Postles' Creed and Commandments, and at first I thought I'd use 'em to begin on, but then I reckoned, on the whole, they was too durned solemn."

He asked the couple to come to his house, secretly hoping that he could find that book; but they declined, for the reason that the matter admitted of no delay.

A less assured man would have been sorely perplexed, but not he. He lost no time in removing his hat, and remarked, "Hats off in the presence of the court." All being uncovered, he said, "I'll swear you in fust off. Hold up yer right hands."

"Me too?" asked the friend of the Groom.

"Of course," said the captain, "all witnesses must be sworn. You and each of you solemnly swear that the evidence you shall give in this case shall be the truth, th' 'ole truth, an' nothin' but the truth, s'elp you God. You, John Marvin, do solemnly swear that to the best of your knowledge an' belief you take this yer woman ter have an' ter hold for yerself, yer heirs, exekyerters, administrators, and assigns, for your an' their use an' behoof forever?"

"I do," answered the groom.

"You, Alice Ewer, take this yer man for yer husband, ter hev an' ter hold forever; and you do further swear that you are lawfully seized in fee-simple, are free from all incumbrance, and hev good right to sell, bargain, and convey to the said grantee yerself, yer heirs, administrators, and assigns?"

"I do," said the bride, rather doubtfully.

"Well, John," said the captain, "that'll be about a dollar 'n' fifty cents."

"Are we married" asked the other.

"Not by a durned sight ye ain't," quoth the captain, with emphasis; "but the fee comes in here." After some fumbling it was produced and handed to the "Court," who examined it to make sure that it was all right, and then pocketed it, and continued: "Know all men by these presents, that I, Captain X, of Raleigh, North Carolina, being in good health and of sound and disposin' mind, in consideration of a dollar 'n' fifty cents to me in hand paid, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, do and by these presents have declared you man and wife during good behavior, and until otherwise ordered by the court."

The men put on their hats again, the young couple, after shaking their benefactor's hand, went on to meet their destiny and the irate father, while the captain rode home richer in experience.—Harper's Magazine.

HOW TO INDUCE FEEBLE HEALTH AND EARLY DEATH.

1. Cultivate practical unbelief in all sanitary regulations.
2. Let no act of your daily life contradict that belief.
3. Feed on wilted cucumbers and lunch on green apples.
4. Keep an abundance of decaying vegetable matter in the cellar,—the butter and milk will absorb their odors of death and convey them to the human stomach and blood which is the life of man.
5. See that all kitchen slops are carefully emptied in one spot just outside the door, or directly under the chamber window.
6. Be careful not to ventilate the sleeping apartments.
7. Use no dried earth or other disinfectants in the water closets or elsewhere about the house.
8. Discard regularity in rising, retiring, eating—laugh at such things.
9. Avoid the bath.
10. Whem warm sit in drafts of cold air.
11 Wear cotten garments next the person twelve months in the year.
12. Drink freely of ice water when heated from exertion—"cool off" afterwards.
13. Work right along beyond your strength.
14. Avoid quiet restfulness on Sunday. Keep under excitement till after midnight and begin work Monday morning in spite of headache and fatigue.
15 Drink intoxicants moderately—or any other way.
16. Like to do wrong generally and always do as you like.

Many other rules might be given, but the careful observance of these will be sufficient to break even vigorous constitutions; besides other will suggest themselves. to those taking this course of life, so that there is nothing to fear.

Good health will soon begin to yield to this treatment, and before long the wrecking coach of death will be exchanged for the quiet of the grave.

THE WELCOME CHORUS.

A singing book for high schools, Academies and seminaries. By W. S. Tilden. Published by Oliver Ditson & Co.

High Schools are now quite fortunate in possessing three or four excellent musical collections, made expressly for them, by those who understand what High Schools need. This has not, until recently, been the case, perhaps because the systematic teaching of music in the higher schools was almost unknown. Now that better times in musical matters are at hand, principals and teachers will be interested in examining the new book, whose author has had a hand in two of the others, and who evidently is master of his vocation. The "Welcome Chorus" commences with a sort of High Elementary Course, which is followed by quite a large division containing Sacred Music for opening and closing exercises, and for practice. After this the rest of the book (or 150 pages) is filled with new and appropriate Glees or Part-Songs, arranged in four parts. It is understood that beginners may all sing one part, that is the air; afterward, as they become more competent, they may try two parts, or three, or four. Meanwhile the four parts played in harmony make an excellent accompaniment to the singing, whether it is in one or more parts.

We bespeak the especial attention of Teachers to this invaluable work. Oliver Ditson & Co. take the premium now in advanced musical works.

Mrs. W. N. Palmer, 149 Morgan Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes: My child was taked Feb. 1st with Croup in its seyerest form and Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil being the only remedy at hand, I began giving it according directions and found it gave immediate relief, I gave three doses and the child rested well the remainder of the night. I have used it in my family for some time with complete success.—Sold by F. Ingram.

ON TIME AS USUAL.

Jones Now Goes to Business Regularly. That attack of Neuralgia that laid him up, and which was only a fresh visitation of an old enemy, disappeared, because he took a friends advice and used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Rheumatic pain, sores, cuts, bruses, throat and lung complaints, etc., are invariably conquered by it.—Sold by F. Ingram.

SURE SIGN.

If you see a lady drop her glove and a gentleman by the side of her, kindly telling her to pick it up, you need not hesitate in forming an opinion that they are married, and if you see a man or woman's face all covered with blotches and pimple, you must not hesitate but tell them to use Spring Blossom. Prices: 50c., trial bottles 10c.—Sold by F. Ingram.

The Franklin House, corner of Bates and Larned sts. Detroit Mich., under the present management of Warner & James, is one of the best conducted hotels in the State. It is in a very convenient location, being in the center of the business part of the city. Its tables are as good as the best, and at the reasonable charge of $1.50 per day, it is as desirable a hotel as one might wish. We can recommend it to our readers as being worthy of patronage in every respect.

Moral disaster, life-wreck, comes whenever the servant takes the reins and rules the life. Gluttony, or any kind of intemperance, enfeebles the soul, and drags it down to death. It cannot be too early nor too deeply realized that the body is the servant of the soul. We are compelled to care for the outward, the material, but only that it, in turn, may serve the lord of the dwelling. The body must know its master. Integrity is lost the instant any appetite or desire in the body becomes so clamorous and importunate as to take control of us. Better lose at once all possibility of any enjoyment through the material organism, than have yourselves enslaved to gross passions—to sink beneath the brutes. —President A. Owen, Denison University.

The twelfth number of the Humboldt Library of Popular Science contains the latter half of H. W. Bates's celebrated work, "The Naturalists on the River Amazons." Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., publishers, 143 4th Avenue, New York. For sale by Frank Smith.

Mrs. Barnhofft, cor. Pratt and Broadway, has been a sufferer for twelve years through Rheumatism, and has tried every remedy she could hear of, but received no benefit, until recommended to try the Eclectric Oil, she says she cannot express the satsfaction she feels at having her pain entirely removed and her Rheumatism cured. Sold by F. Ingram.

Many a man has involved himself in financial difficulty and ruin, by turning aside from his legitimate business into outside enterprises and speculations. When any church decides to abandon this work, and instead of laboring for the salvation of men fritters away its powers and squanders its influence by sectarian quarrels and divisions; or by pandering to the notions, tastes and customs of the world, seeking to please men rather than to prefit them and save them; the invariable tendency of such a course is to defeat the ends which are sought to be attained, and involve the church in financial embarrassment, bankruptcy and ruin.

Of two evils—choose neither.

Pet virtues distort one. Balance up your goodness.

Seest thou a man who is wise in his own conceit?—probably you are more hopeful of yourself than you are of him.

A capital hint for pastors who would like to get all their people to come to church. A writer in Colman's Rural World says that he gathers his flock of sheep from every part of his hundred acre pasture by blowing a horn. "They expect, he says, "and always get salt or corn for their obedience."—Michigan Christian Herald.

TO ACCOMMODATE THE PUBLIC.

The proprietors of that immensely popular remedy, Kidney-Wort in recognition of the claims of the public which has so liberally patronized them, have prepared a liquid preparation of that remedy for the special accomodation of those who from any reason dislike to prepare it for themselves. It is very concentrated and, as the dose is small, it is more easily taken by many. It has the same effectual action in all diseases of the kidneys, liver or bowels.—Home and Farm.

GIVEN UP BY THE DOCTORS.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters; and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well-a-day! That is remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George —I know hops are good."—Salem Post.

ROBERT F. JOHNSTONE, OBIT OCT. 25, MDCCCXXXX.

Old man, you lie with peaceful face,
As in a joyous, placid sleep,
Your senses seem to grandly sleep
In fullness of unconscious grace.

Can it be true that you are dead?
We doubt what is a deadly truth!
While feeling in our hearts the ruth
Of parting with that good old head.

Good head, good heart, good tender soul,
Good friend, good writer, honest man,
What more of bitterness to mourn,
Than parting from such perfect whole?

God rest you, in the after plan
Of life for those who reach the bourne.
LESLIE THOM.

Cut away the campaign roorback,
Let it rest till '84,
Keep it for the 'lection liars
Wandering up Salt river's shore.

We sing the honor of the Plow,
And honor of the Press—
Two noble instruments of toil,
Each with a power to bless.
The bone, the nerve of this fast age,
True wealth of human kind;
One tills the ever-faithful earth,
The other tills the mind.

How I Got Promoted.

"Tom," said the chief, "there has been a rather mysterious robbery at Barrow town, and it's likely to give the "locals" some trouble. So I wish you to go down as soon as possible."

This order I received one hot day in August, on the day after the robbery had taken place. Of course I did not let much pass before I was at the station and fairly started. Once there, Barrowtown is a quaint, picturesque little town like many another in goodly England. It seemed almost too dull to be able to boast the doubtful honor of having had a full-grown robbery. Still I like the quiet little town, for it was there that I gained my first promotion. I was met at the station by the local inspector, a stout, pompous excitable little man, who looked doubtful as to the prudence of the Scotland Yard authorities in sending down such an ordinary looking mortal as myself.

"Oh," he remarked at last; "so it's you, young man, is it? I don't think we are likely to trouble you much this time. The fact is, ahem! we have caught the culprit ourselves."

I merely bowed and expressed a wish to see the prisoner; and we both set off for the county jail, perhaps a mile or so away.

Well, it certainly seemed as plain as day to me that the unhappy wretch on whom Inspector Muggridge had laid his fell grasp could easily have proved an alibi, had not that worthy officer continually interrupted him with. "Better keep all that for your examination, my good fellow; or it'll all be brought up against you, my man, you know."

I told him seriously, as soon as I could, in private, that the man he had arrested was no more guilty than I was; but he simply smiled incredulously, and asked who else could be the culprit, as this was the only really abandoned character of the town, and it was plainly the work of some one who knew the place. "Beside," he added, "it isn't very likely that any one could beat me on my own ground where I know everybody, you know and if he didn't do it, who did?" With which really unanswerable argument he accompanied me to the scene of the robbery, where we were shown over the premises by the mistress of the house.

When I saw the ground-floor window by which access had been gained to the house, I quite agreed with the worthy "local" that it was the work of a new hand, and that from the fact that his footprints, wherever we could trace them, showed no hesitation, but rather a thorough acquaintance with the grounds, the culprit, whoever he was, must have had some opportunity of visiting the scene of operations, and probably lived somewhere in the neighborhood.

It seemed that the thief had entered the house by a window in the rear, and carried off a small box of valuables from the room of the master of the house, who had been staying at a friend's on that night. Both these facts showed an intimate knowledge of the premises on the part of the culprit, and strengthened our former belief. We were informed that the lost casket—an ordinary tin cash box—had been almost filled with various articles of Jewelry, and therefore the loss was rather heavy. Of course the knowledge that there would be a good reward for the recovery of the missing property did not abate my zeal.

Still, in spite of my eagerness to discover the culprit, I could make but little of the case, and might even have come over to the opinion of the "local" but for one very important fact, namely, the footprints in the garden-bed were all smaller than those of the prisoner! Now, although a man may wear boots several sizes too large for him on occasion, yet he can hardly walk with comfort in shoes an inch or so too short.

Very much annoyed at my want of success, and dreading the chaff I would be sure to get when, compelled to give it up, I should return to town, I was not particularly delighted next morning to see Mr. Muggridge coming up the road to the house accompanied by the editor of the Barrowtown Weekly Banner, who had determined, and said, to write up the account of the robbery himself. But there was no escape; and so, prepared for a host of questions, I was walking slowly to meet them, when my eye was caught by something bright among the bushes by the roadside. Yes, there could be no doubt of it; there lay the lost box, empty of course. Without stopping, however, I walked as calmly as possible on to the inspector, and was introduced to Mr. Shears the editor. It was simply wonderful how obliging I had become. I even, when Mr. Muggridge hinted that he was pressed for time volunteered, myself to give Mr. Shears the information he wished, and to go over the premises with him. Once left alone with the zealous representative of the press, I gave that gentleman all the points of the case, and a few more, as you shall see.

The next forenoon, as soon as a copy of the Banner came to the house where the robbery had occurred—I had for the last two days spent from the forenoon until dusk there—I turned to the end of the column devoted to the "Great Robbery," and read, with a chuckle, the announcement that "the loss of the jewels would be less felt had there not been between the two bottoms of the box almost two hundred pounds in banknotes, of which, unfortunately, the numbers had not been taken."

Probably the intelligent reader sees my plan; but certainly I did not choose to explain it to Mr. Muggridge, when, an hour later, that worthy but excitable gentleman rode, very hot and very red, up the shadeless road, to complain of my having "made a confounded mess of the account, you know." I simply advised him to wait for a very few days, and then I would be happy to explain everything.

That evening, as usual, I left the grounds at dusk, after spending the most of the day in watching—though apparently engaged in something else—whether any one went near the spot, a few hundred yards from the grounds, where lay the box on which I especially depended as a bait to hook the thief. By walking slowly, I managed to let the shades of evening close around me before I was far beyond the spot where I had made up my mind to watch and wait.

Eight! Nine! Were they never coming? and was my trap laid and baited in vain? Ten! Surely they should have come by this time. Still——— Was that a sound on the road? Yes, and coming from the village. There were evidently several of them, and I began to regret not having brought some help. Nearer they came, laughing and talking, as I cautiously drew farther back from the road. And now they were opposite the spot where the box lay hid. But—what! They've gone by, and in the hearty guffaw of the man farthest away of the three, I recognized Farmer Lobbins, an honest fellow, whose acquaintance I had made during my short stay. After this sell, I had almost given up, and was actually making up my mind to abandon the affair, when a faint sound from down the road made me crouch as low as possible once more. It was no hoax this time. A short, thin man, whom I easily recognized as a man of all work who had been helping the gardner that day, was creeping stealthily down the road, close to the bushes. As soon as he reached the spot where the box had been thrown, he lit a small lantern to aid him in his search. This time I felt sure; and so, when the man blew out the light, after securing the supposed treasure, the capture was made.

"Oh! why, yes," observed the worthy Mr. Muggridge, who was in the office when I brought in the prisoner that night, "I thought as much; I've had my eye on that fellow all along."

The man made confession; indeed, he was caught in the act, and could not deny it. The jewels were all recovered, and the reward proved very useful in helping me to me to marry and settle down quietly, when one month later, I received my promotion.—Chambers' Journal.

EASING ONE'S CONSCIENCE.—Mr. Whittier tells the following story as a personal recollection: An old Friend was very much annoyed one afternoon by some boys following him and jeering and swearing at him, and especially when his hat blew off calling out to him: "Go it, Broad-brim! Limber up and you'll catch it yet!" The friend noticed a boy coming down the street and said: "Boy, is thee profane?" "You bet." "Then (handing him a quarter) damn those boys two shillings' worth."

WHERE IS THY GOD?

It is said that as the unfortunate Dr. Dodd stepped into the mourning coach, which carried him to the place of execution, a female deist accosted him with these words.

"Docter, where now is the Lord thy God?" "Woman," replied he, "go home, open your Bible to the seventh chapter of Micah, eighth and ninth, and you will find." She did as directed, and read the following words: "Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy, when I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me. I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him until he plead my cause, and execute judgment for me: he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness. Then she that is mine enemy shall see it' and shame shall cover her that said unto me; "where is the Lord thy God? Mine eyes shall behold her; now shall she be trodden down as the mire of the streets." She closed the book and hanged herself. An awful lesson this is to those who scoff at the word of God, and exult over the unfortunate, but repenting sinner.

The Man With a Glass Eye.

As a train on the Kansas Pacific pulled away from the Sixteenth street depot, a few mornings since, a tall, angular speciman of humanity took a seat opposite a lady passenger, and, to all appearances, was intently engaged in studying her face. At first she treated him with good natured indifference. But at last it began to tell on her nerves. It was curious and astonishing piece of impertinence. He apparently had the faculty of looking two ways at once. One of his eyes was restless, excited and roved in all directions. The other, fixed and stony, fastened on her with an undeviating stare. She turned her head away, but intercepted her vision. She tried to hide behind a paper, but she felt that cruel eye piercing through the screen and creeping with a stony look all over her features. It seemed to be picking them up one by one, and examining them with care. The thing became unendurable, and she cried to him fiercely:

"Sir, why do you look at me so persistently?"

"Me, madam; why bless my soul! I haven't been looking at you."

"You have, sir—for a half hour or more your eye has been absolutely rivited on my face."

"I beg your parden, madam: but it was this eye was it not!" lifting his finger to his left optic.

"Yes, sir, it's that eye."

"Well, madam, that eye won't do you any harm. It generally looks any way it pleases—it gives me a good deal of trouble. A great many complain of it. At first I thought they were making fun of me, but I've found out differently now. I've been knocked for the impertinence of that eye. I would leave it out altogether but for the looks of the thing. It s a glass eye, madam—only a glass eye. I hope you'll excuse it. But, upon my soul, I'm not surprised that even a glass eye should feel interested in so pretty a woman," and he brought his other eye to bear upon her in undisguised admiration.

The lady laughingly excepted the explanation, and the rest of the journey was passed very pleasantly to both of them.—Rocky Mountain News.

We quote from the Lainsburg Correspondence to the Ingham County Democrat.

A very pleasant party assembled at the residence of L. B. Huntington of this place on Tuesday evening of last week to witness the marriage of Vesta C., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington, to Bowman W. Dennis of Ypsilanti. The bride was attired in peacock blue silk, with vail and orange blossoms.

A canopy had been prepared under which the bridal pair stood during the ceremony and the entire ensemble was decidedly tasty and neat. At seven o'clock Rev. J. R. Stevenson of Eaton Rapids, who was the officiating clergyman, announced that the hour had arrived and the happy couple were introduced into the room and made one by a short but elegant ceremony. After which congratulations followed and an excellent supper discussed. A few minutes later, the newly married couple, together with friends from Mason, were whirling away on the South bound train for their new home in Charlotte.

DIED.

PRESTON.—In Pittsfield, Oct. 31st 1880, of Consumption, FLORA PRESTON, aged 24 years.

VANTUYL.—In this city, Nov. 1st, MRS. CLARA C. VANTUYL, born in Windsor, Vermont, Sept. 1806.

Her early life was mostly spent in Northampton, Mass., where in 1846 she married Mr. Ralph Swift, with whom she lived fifteen years. In 1863 she married Mr. Issac Van Tuyl, who preceeded her so recently over the river. Mrs. VanTuyl was a life long christian, and evinced by her quiet consistent walk the reality of her profession. Of a family of four, one brother and three sisters two preceeded her, so that her death leaves Mrs. Louise Sweet the only survivor, who in her sorrow and loneliness has the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

DENVER, Col., October 31.—Denver has been in the hands of a mob for over eight hours, and there are now fully 1,500 rioters in the Streets. The Trouble has been growing for days. It was discovered a week ago that there fully 8,000 illegal names registered in this city. Immediately afterwards the streets were filled with strangers of the worst character. Ever since the publication of the forged Garfield letter violent partisans have striven to make an issue of the Chinese question, and the democratic press has been filled with articles asserting that as soon as Garfield was elected the state would be flooded with Chinese and all white labor driven out. Saturday night the Democrats had a procession, carrying, transparences with inscriptions and cartoons tending to excite animosity against the Chinese. A considerable portion became intoxicated and remained out all night. This noon they made an assault on the Chinese houses, tearing down the houses and beating and driving out the Chinese. Many colored men were knocked down and beaten.

Worse than Death.

They tell this good story about Gen. Joe Hawley going to the war in 1861. He was then an editor on the Hartford Press, since consolidated with the Courant. When the news came of the firing on Sumter, and the call for 75,000 men, Hawley having tried several times to write on the subject, laid down his pen with, "Boys, I'm going to do the fighting for this office; you must run the paper," and went out and enlisted. He was the first volunteer from the State of Connecticut. The Press furnished from its employees a large number of volunteers first and last. It is related that on one occasion, after the Press had been unusually patriotic in its appeals, one of the compositors announced that he had enlisted One of the editors congratulated him, and remarked that perhaps the recent editorials had been pretty effective. "Lord, no!" said the compositor; "it isn't the patriotism; but I enlisted because I'd rather run the risk of being shot than try to set any more of your infernal handwriting!"

BE HONEST.—I tell you, brethren be honest in your dealings; take no advantage, even of a child. Be conscientious in your bargains. Seek not to be called shrewd. Be not ashamed to be called simple. And let me tell you a secret which ought not to be a secret, seeing it is written in the Scriptures, that your whole body will then be full of light, and then in every kind. You will actually see further and see clearer than shrewd and cunning men; and you will be less liable to be duped than they provided you add to this another part of the character which is proper to an honest man, namely; a resolution to protect honesty, and discountenance every kind of fraud. A cunning man is never a firm man, but an honest man is. A doubble-minded man is always unstable; a man of faith is as strong as a rock. I tell you there is a sacred connection between honesty and faith; honesty is faith applied to worldly things, and faith is honesty quickened by the Spirit to the use of heavenly things.—Edward Irving.

A Queer Notion.

Many people think it cheaper to buy 25 cent sizes of a proprietary medicine. But they make a mistake. For instance, Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry contains about eight times the quantity of ordinary 25 cent balsams. Besides it takes a less quantity of Wistar's Balsam to cure a cold. A single dose is often sufficient. For deep seated Colds and comsumption it has proven itself to be the best and quickest cure ever discovered. 845 1 yr.

Junior Buckeye MOWER.

Don't fail to read the following before purchasing.

Parties in want of a Lawn Mower should not fail to see the NEW BUCKEYE.

A few of its merits are

1. It is about one-third lighter than other mowers in the market.
2. Simplicity, strength, and durability.
3. Ease of working and not liable to get out of order.
4. All parts requiring strength are made of the best quality of iron and cast steel.
5. The gears are so located that it is impossible to clog them with cut grass.
6. The wheels are 7½ inches in diameter, and both drivers, so that it runs lightly and will cut turning either right or left.
7. When drawn backward the ground wheels only reverse motion, consequently is more easily handled.
8. It has these cast steel revolving cutter blades, set at such an angle with the stationary knife, as to give a perfect shear cut.
9. The cutter bar is made of cast steel tempered and is easily adjusted.
10. Has an adjustable roller running the entire width of the machine to regulate the height of cut. See directions.
11. It has adjustable handles and addapts itself to irregularities of the surface.
12. Can sharpen it yourself without going to a repair shop. See directions.
13. It is a perfect "little beauty," being compact, thoroughly made and beautifully finished. In short, it is the most perfect Lawn Mower ever placed udon the market.

Don't fail to ask for the NEW BUCKEYE.

KIDNEY WORT

The Only Remedy
THAT ACTS AT THE SAME TIME ON
THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.
This combined action gives it wonderful power to cure all diseases.
Why Are We Sick?
Because we allow these great organs to become clogged or torpid, and poisonous humors are therefore forced into the blood that should be expelled naturally.
KIDNEY WORT WILL CURE
BILIOUSNESS, PILES, CONSTIPATION, KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, URINARY DISEASES, FEMALE WEAKNESSES, AND NERVOUS DISORDERS, by causing free action of these organs and restoring their power to throw off disease.
Why Suffer Bilious pains and aches?
Why tormented with Piles, Constipation?
Why frightened over disordered Kidneys?
Why endure nervous or sick headaches?
Why have sleepless nights?
Use KIDNEY WORT and rejoice in health. It is a dry, vegetable compound and One package will make six qts of Medicine. Get it of your Druggist, he will order it for you. Price, $1.00.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases, caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel, or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.
